- An IRA or OIWA constitution

- A non-constitutional organizational document (e.g. tribal legislation)
- A traditional system (please describe)
- Other (please describe)

The Pueblo adopted its first written constitution in 1908, well before the IRA. It was replaced with another constitution adopted in 1934 under the provisions of the then enacted IRA. Since that time, the Pueblo has amended and adopted two other constitutions in 1958, and the latest being adopted in 1984.

The Pueblo has some parcels of land located north of the Tohajiilee Navajo Community, a recently purchased parcel located on Mt. Taylor and uninhabited land southwest of the main reservation area.

- Within Indian country (or dependent Indian community); there are no reservation boundaries
- Please describe disputes regarding the tribe's territorial jurisdiction, including boundaries; Non-Indian owned fee land; dependent Indian community status; state or county roads; or any other:

There are some disputes between State Police and County Sheriff jurisdiction over tribal members for violations on state and county roads since there is no joint powers agreement between the Pueblo and these agencies.
